

Children's Services Think Tank: Defining the Post- Pandemic Pivot

Children's Services Think Tank: Defining the Post-Pandemic Pivot

- Ashley Burger, Program Manager, EarlyON Child and Family Centres, Toronto Children's Services
- Abi Jeyaratnam, EarlyON Consultant, Toronto Children's Services
- Monique Poirier, Manager, Children Services, City of Greater Sudbury
- Laura Urso, Children Services, Coordinator of Quality & Early Years Programs, City of Greater Sudbury

1

In the context of EarlyON, what did you learn about supporting families
during the pandemic?

POLL

What were your most notable successes with respect to virtual programming?

What were your most consistent challenges with respect to virtual programming?

Will your service delivery model include virtual programming in the post-pandemic world?

What aspects of successful virtual programming should be preserved and incorporated into a hybrid post-pandemic model?

2

What were your successes and challenges with respect to virtual programming?

What aspects of successful virtual programming should be preserved and why?

What would a hybrid post-pandemic model look like?

3

What other innovations did you come up with during the pandemic that you plan to maintain post-pandemic?

4

Where is the balance between planning ahead
and remaining nimble
and able to pivot?

What is necessary to enable and maintain this balance?

POLL

Which elements would you include in a reimagined Vision for EarlyON?

5

Taking into account the most significant lessons of the pandemic (such as the inequitable impacts on vulnerable families), what would a reimagined vision for EarlyON programming and service delivery look like?

How can we apply these lessons to Child Care or other Children's Services programs?

